I purchased an expensive ($2,250) Gibson acoustic guitar in September and immediately began using a humidifier to help protect my investment. In the extremely dry, mile-high altitude climate I live in, proper humidification is an absolute must.

It wasn't long before I got tired of pulling out a cumbersome gallon-sized bottle and injecting purified water into the humidification unit every couple of days. As soon as I saw an ad for the Planet Waves Humidipak system, I jumped on it and ordered a set.

I have now been using the Humidipak system for about two months, and the results have been astonishing! The pleasant aroma of the mahogany has returned and drifts out of the sound hole like it did when the instrument was brand new. I've found that the guitar does not need to be tuned as much from day-to-day. To top it all off, the digital hygrometer I keep in my guitar case reads 45% R.H. and rarely fluctuates.

The Planet Waves Humidipak system is the greatest invention since sliced bread! Congratulations and thanks for developing such an incredible, high-quality product!
